GetNoodles Educational Software

I recently learned about a new free program to help children retain their knowledge and continue their learning while they are playing on the computer. For the time being, Zackary's "screen time" is closely monitored and quite restricted so this wasn't a program that I could accurately test myself. But it seemed like such a useful product that I just had to share it so that subscribers with older children can give it a try!

GetNoodles is free educational software which is downloaded to your home computer. Parents set the program for their children and choose a grade level and subject for each child that uses the computer. The program then generates questions specifically designed to challenge each child. Parents choose how often the questions will appear (anywhere from every five to every 55 minutes) and when the time limit is reached, the child's computer activities are halted until they type their name and answer their question.

Correct answers are rewarded with more computer time and with points in a child's GetNoodles account that can be used for raffle tickets to win great prizes on the site. Parents also receive a weekly progress report that highlights their child's progress and helps them to pinpoint areas that need extra work.

So many parents worry about their child spending too much time playing online games or chatting on Facebook, but GetNoodles seems like a great way to make sure that a child's fun is balanced with learning as well. If you have a school-age child that loves to use the computer, you might want to check out the site for yourself!
