GetNoodles™

Are your kids addicted to the online community? Do they prefer to chat with friends, play games and socialize virtually rather than focusing on studying and schoolwork? GetNoodles can make sure their online time is a learning and studying experience while still allowing them the freedom (within your guidelines) to enjoy what they love to do.

GetNoodles is a FREE web-based educational software program that can be installed in minutes. It will interrupt a child's playtime on the internet with pop-up multiple choice quizzes on a variety of subjects. The kids must answer the questions in order to resume their online activities.

GetNoodles is Windows and MAC compatible and can be used by preschool through 12th grade.

Here are some of the key features that parents will like:

- One parental account can have up to six children using the software.
- Parents receive a weekly email showing their child's statistics and overall progress
- GetNoodles tracks each child's total online time
- Parents have control and can change the child's settings from any computer
- Can be custom for the child as the parent can change the educational subjects, timing and frequency of pop-up questions. Subjects are categorized by School Subject, College Preps or Life Lessons
- Works on any computer running Windows98, XP, Vista and Win7
- Many languages available
- Parents can turn off pop-ups while they're using the computer

In addition to being free, it is tested and verified for safety and can be uninstalled at any time. GetNoodles doesn't come on a disc - it's completely web-based but MAC and PC compatible.

As an incentive for kids to answer correctly they can earn points qualifying them for raffle ticket prizes that include gift certificates from major retailers. Matching points are awarded to the parents who qualifies for their own raffle tickets.

This looks great for my 10 year old who spends WAY too much time playing 1 games on the computer - I think it is time he learned a second language - I'll try it!
